“Crystal and I were close friends and shared many memories of each other but we shared our love of cats in particular. Sheba was much more than a companion to Crystal following her around wherever Crystal ventured outside. Sheba followed her up the hill to get her paper as well as her mail, but this smart little black cat would wait on the side never crossing the road as Crystal picked up her chore. Sheba was much more as she was always near and they shared many warm and cozy evenings on Crystal's lap or she would "steal Crystal's seat" in her rocking chair. I am missing this dear lady although I know that God called her at this particular time saying, "Come with Me, Crystal. It is time."
